

Speakers' Biography

Dr Catherine Gill, Health Research Board

Dr Catherine Gill is a Programme Manager for Targeted Programmes and Evaluation at the Health Research Board (HRB), with responsibility for developing and delivering targeted research programmes that are linked to national health policy and service delivery research evidence needs. Before joining the HRB in 2008 Catherine worked as a researcher in academia for eight years. Since then, she has worked with the HRB's research funding function in a variety of roles, gaining experience across a broad range of health research areas, funding approaches and related policy.

Dr Karen Matvienko-Sikar, University College Cork

Dr Karen Matvienko-Sikar is a Lecturer and a Health Research Board Applying Research in Policy and Practice Research Fellow in the School of Public Health, University College Cork. Karen is a health psychologist with research interests and expertise in maternal and child health, in particular perinatal mental health and childhood obesity. Her research focuses on development and evaluation of interventions to improve maternal and child health outcomes.